

HA-1110
BORNEMAN APARTMENTS
Havre de Grace, Md.

1857. 1906

This three story brick building was constructed in 1857 as the Methodist Church and used for service until the new building (HA-1125) was finished in 1902. The sanctuary was on the second floor and blind round arches may still be seen in the side walls. The building's facade was changed to its present appearance in 1906 when it was changed into flats or apartments.

110 N. Union Avenue , formerly the Havre de Grace Methodist Church (1857-1901) is a three story, four bay by seven bay, detached, brick apartment building, facing west. The building is directly across the street from St John's Episcopal Church and less than a block from the Methodist Church which replaced it in 1901. Next door, on the south, is the present Methodist parsonage while to the north is the old Methodist parsonage (c. 1867), now a private residence. As originally built, the church had two storys and was three bays by six bays; when the structure became apartments, shortly after the church vacated it, the rear was extended.

The facade and first bays of the north and south elevations are laid in all stretcher bond and the flanks are common bond. A brick belt course once separated the first and second storys on all elevations; now, a belt course remains on the flanks. According to an old photograph (photocopy included in this report), the surface of the facade had three, tall, round arches recessed into it on the second floor; this treatment can be seen today in the first bays of the north and south elevations.

A two story, five bay porch (c. 1920) with Tuscan Columns on brick piers and a flat roof with a metal railing , extends across the facade. When the building was a church, a gabled portico supported by scrolled brackets sheltered the front door.

Today the windows on the facade are arranged in pairs. On the first floor , double windows, having 1/1 double-hung sash , wide muntins and decorative , wooden hoods, flank the front door. Beginning at the level of the second floor, two, two story, metal oriel windows are located on either side of the facade; between them are 1/1 light, double-hung windows with granite sills and lintels. On the flanks, round arched window openings have been bricked and replaced with 1/1, double-hung windows with brick flat arches and wooden sills. The original church facade had a large, round arched window set in a recessed brick arch in the center of the second story with narrow round round windows set in recessed brick arches flanking it. On the first floor, two smaller, round arched windows were present on either side of the entrance; all the windows were filled with stained glass. The flanks were treated in a similar fashion with large, round arched openings on the second floor and smaller ones on the first.

The present doorway, in the center bay of the facade, has a large three light transom with side lights and the door has glass in the upper half. Entrance to the church was through double, paneled doors set in a brick , round arch.

The church has a low, gabled, brick roof with a mansard, ...

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This building was originally erected in 1857 as the Havre de Grace Methodist Church. Earlier sites of the church were the rear of City Hall (HA-816) and the dwelling at 317 N. Stokes St. (HA-1097). In 1907 Steven J. Seneca., a local canner, businessman and Mayor of Havre de Grace (1893- 1894) proposed to give the Methodist congregation a new, stone church. The result of this bequest was the building on the corner of Congress St. and S. Union Avenue. Seneca, who lived at 200 N. Union Avenue (HA-815) bought the old church building from the congregation in 1906 for $3,000.00, changed the facade to its present appearance and remodeled the interior into two apartments,

110 N. Union Avenue , although not architecturally significant in its present condition, has local historical importance as the building in which the Methodist congregation of Havre de Grace worshipped for 44 years, years which included the Civil War. The Borneman Apartments are located in the 100 block of N. Union Avenue, a block which contains several significant mid-19th century structures including the City Hall (HA-816).

7. DESCRIPTION CONT. 110 N. Union Avenue

The church had a low pitched, gable front roof with a bracketed cornice. A corbeled, brick cornice (still present) ran the length of the flanks. Today the roof is flat and the cornice is metal. Interior brick chimneys are located on the sides of the building.

Internally the structure is divided in two with three apartments in each side. The second floor apartments have elaborately carved, wooden mantels with mirrors incorporated into the panels above them.
